

women WHO MOVE the City

MOVERS & SHAKERS

by Sarah Vansciver

San Diego Magazine is proud to present its fifth annual Women Who Move the City event, which honors the dynamic local women who work tirelessly to bring positive change, support women in business and enhance our community. This year, 77 vibrant women have been nominated for this prestigious honor, and one will be given the award at the Scripps Seaside Forum on September 15. San Diego Magazine publisher Jim Fitzpatrick, along with the four past recipients, will select the 2010 "Woman of the Year." From a chief marketing guru and a San Diego State University dean to a champion of children's rights and a former Navy mayor of San Diego, these women have set a high bar for this distinction in regard to their human excellence and unfailing dedication to making a difference.

SUSAN GOLDING

CEO & President | Promises2Kids

Successfully rebranded 30-year-old organization; created first-ever Summer Promises Concert with singer Jewel, which brought in a record number of donations; instrumental in land donation for the creation of the Polinsky Children's Center